

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Three Generations in the House of God

Published Spring 2013

Dear Editors of the DMJ,

Thanks for the humanities piece, Three Generations in the House of God. I finally read this iconic book for the first time last year, after more than three decades of medical practice. It contains much truth, suffering, and black humor, raising awareness of issues which are still important today. The decline in empathy and ethics especially in the clerkship remains a challenge for our profession.
