

Editor's Message

I am very pleased to present the third issue of the International Journal of Geohazards and Environment (IJGE). Since its debut in April 2015, the journal has enjoyed increasing popularity among young and distinguished scholars around the world. We now have members on the Editorial Board from eleven countries/regions in four continents with expertise covering the whole spectrum of geohazards.

We will continue presenting high quality papers to our readers. To help young scholars, we will continue providing assistance in technical writing, particularly how to improve the quality of a manuscript to meet the standard of an international journal. As always, we welcome experienced scholars to submit their distinguished works to IJGE.

Based on the demand from researchers in various fields, we will start to publish Special/Theme Issues in 2016, with each Issue focusing on a specific subject. We encourage research chairs, project leaders, conference organizers and society chairpersons to submit proposals. A Special/Theme Issue may cover a specific research program, a region, a type of geohazards, or a project, etc., which are of interest to our readers and contain valuable information to the research community and the public.

On behalf of the Editorial Board and staff, I want to thank all reviewers for taking their valuable time in reviewing manuscripts and authors for submitting their works.
