

Books by Youtubers

I'm sure we've all been obsessed with a youtuber at one point or another, but did you know that many have also written young adult novels? Below are a few novels written by famous Youtubers; some of which have become quite prolific YA authors. For those looking to find books for their teen's favourite Youtubers or simply curious as to what books are out there, here are a few for you:

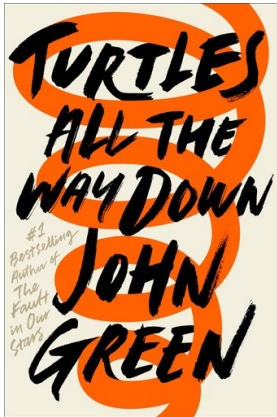

Image Source

John Green - Turtles All the Way Down (2017)

Themes: Romance, Contemporary, Mental Illness (OCD/Anxiety)

After Russel Pickett, a local wealthy man, goes missing, a $100,000 reward is offered to whoever can help find him. Aza, knowing Russel's son Davis, decides to investigate the disappearance with her close friend Daisy. Though both are eager to investigate, the two must balance the reluctance of Davis to find his father and Ava's struggle with her compulsive and anxious thoughts throughout their investigation. Where did Russel go?

Image Source

Zoe Sugg & Amy McCulloch - The Magpie Society (2020)

Themes: Mystery/Thriller, Fantasy, Contemporary

For fans of Zoe Sugg and her YA series Girl Online, The Magpie Society is a murder mystery novel centered on the tattoo of a magpie found on the dead body of student. Audrey is a new student at Illumen Hall, a boarding school, when she finds herself embroiled in solving the mysterious death of student after a party. As she and her roommate Ivy try to unravel the mystery of the Magpie Society, they are drawn into a conspiracy larger than they could imagine.

Image Source

Joey Graceffa - Children of Eden (2016)

Themes: Dystopian, Fantasy, Romance

In a world governed by extreme population control, Rowan shouldn't exist. After the Earth was destroyed, Eden was created to protect the last vestiges of humans. But only the first born child from any family is allowed to live and are given special eye implants, changing the colour of their eyes, to prove their belonging in Eden. Rowan is a twin, the second born. As Rowan struggles to exist in a hostile world, she must learn to remain secret or abandon the life she knows.

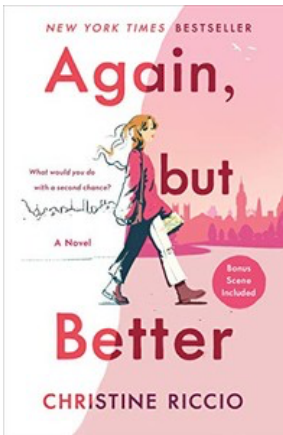

Image_Source

Marzia Kjellerg - Dream House (2015)

Themes: Fantasy, Mystery/Thriller, Horror

Would you enter a stranger's home during a storm? Amethyst stumbles upon a home she finds herself inexplicably drawn to and, as the Blooms invite her in, she can't help but say yes. Amethyst has no idea what she's agreed to, and when she awakes, she finds herself alone in the house with no Blooms to be found. Deciding to stay and explore the house and its neighbors, Amethyst finds things she never could have expected.

Image_Source

Christine Riccio - Again, but Better (2019)

Themes: Contemporary, Romance, Fantasy

Shane, a pre-med college student, feels stuck. Doing what her parents wish for her is killing her slowly, with no social life and no fun. When Shane is given the opportunity to go to London for a semester abroad and embrace her dreams of writing, she jumps at the chance. There, Shane meets Pilot and is happy, until her parents discover what she's really doing. Will Shane get another chance at happiness?

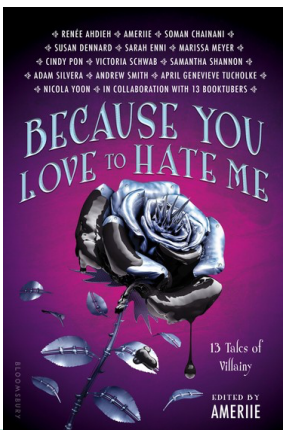

Image_Source

Joe Sugg - Username: Evie (2015)

Themes: Graphic Novel, Fantasy/Science Fiction

With almost no friends in school, Evie is lonely and even lonelier when her sick father passes away. With no other place to turn, Evie is forced to live with her popular cousin, Mallory and her family. Fortunately for Evie, she stumbles across an app, which her father made, capable of transporting her to magical digital place where everything is perfectly made for Evie. Everything is perfect, or is it?

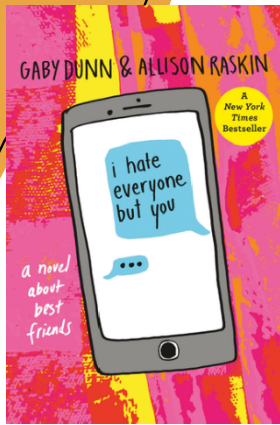

Image_Source

Ameriie (Editor) - Because You Love to Hate Me: 13 Tales of Villainy (2017)

Themes: Short stories, Anthology, Fantasy, Fairy Tales

Written from the perspective of the classical "villains," this anthology covers 13 popular fairy tales. Discover the things that made them villainous and uncover the motivations for their once considered heinous actions. This anthology covers work from 13 Youtubers and writers.

Gaby Dunn & Allison Raskin - I Hate Everyone But You (2019)

Themes: Romance, Contemporary, LGBTQIA+

Moving away for university is a huge, life-changing decision. Leaving behind all that you know can sometimes break friendships, but Ava and Gen are determined to be there for each other through it all. Told through letters and texts, the novel follows Ava and Gen as they, respectively, attend USC and Emerson. As the two share their wonderfully different lives with each other, they struggle to remain friends like they once were.

Image Source